

Nature & Adventure

Brunei is known as the Abode of Peace and this is a country that highly protects the pristine condition of its rainforest and marine habitats.

Here are a few ways to go on a nature or adventure trail in Brunei:

ULU TEMBURONG NATIONAL PARK

This is the crown jewel of Brunei's prized green spaces. This sprawling 50,000-hectare expanse of undisturbed primary rainforest stretches over most of southern Temburong.

Considered one of the most diverse ecosystems in the world, the park encompasses a range of habitats, from lowland forests to jungle and mountain forests, that is home to many unique species.

For ecological and practical reasons it is best to visit as a part of an organized tour. Local travel and tour operators offer packages for trips to the park.

Visit www.bruneitourism.travel for a list of local travel and tour operators.

TASEK MERIMBUN ASEAN HERITAGE PARK

On the list of ASEAN Heritage Parks and Reserves, this park stretches over 2,500 hectares of wetlands. The centerpiece is the freshwater lake, which supports a variety of fish and fauna, with an island in the middle that is connected to the shores with elevated wooden walkways. The surrounding forest is inhabited by species endemic to the region, and is a popular spot for nature lovers.

DIVING

It's a little known fact that Brunei is a diver's paradise with vast coral reefs and colourful marine life in the waters off the sultanate's coast. Ship wrecks scattered between Brunei and the Malaysian island of Labuan are teeming with sea life.

Local dive operators have packages for the more experienced and new divers.
